EX.NO. 3	DESIGN A WEB PAGE CREATION USING HTML BASIC TAGS

AIM:

To develop a webpage using basic HTML tags

DESCRIPTION:

About the basic tags:

- <h1> defines the most important heading.
- <h6> defines the least important heading.
- HTML paragraphs are defined with the  tag.
- HTML links are defined with the  tag.
- HTML images are defined with the <img> tag.
- The  tag defines a line break, and is an empty element without a closing tag.
- The required alt attribute for the <img> tag specifies an alternate text for an image, if the image for some reason cannot be displayed.
- Use the style attribute for styling HTML elements
- Use background-color for background color
- Use color for text colors
- Use font-family for text fonts
- Use font-size for text sizes.
- Use text-align for text alignment
- Use  for Bold text
- Use - Important text
- Use  - Italic text
- <small> - Smaller text
-  - Deleted text
- Use the  element to define a link
- Use the href attribute to define the link address
- The <form> element is a container for different types of input elements, such as: text fields, checkboxes, radio buttons, submit buttons.
- The action attribute defines the action to be performed when the form is submitted.
- Use the HTML <table> element to define a table
- Use the HTML <tr> element to define a table row
- Use the HTML <td> element to define a table data
- Use the HTML <th> element to define a table heading

A field goal is worth two points, unless made from behind the three-point line, when it is worth three. After a foul, timed play stops and the player fouled or designated to shoot a technical foul is given one, two or three one-point free throws. The team with the most points at the end of the game wins, but if regulation play expires with the score tied, an additional period of play (overtime) is mandated.
<h2 style="color:Tomato;"><B>HISTORY:</B></h2>
In early December 1891, Canadian James Naismith,[5] a physical education professor and instructor at the International Young Men's Christian Association Training School[6] (YMCA) (today, Springfield College) in Springfield, Massachusetts, was trying to keep his gym class active on a rainy day. He sought a vigorous indoor game to keep his students occupied and at proper levels of fitness during the long New England winters. After rejecting other ideas as either too rough or poorly suited to walled-in gymnasiums, he wrote the basic rules and nailed a peach basket onto an elevated track. In contrast with modern basketball nets, this peach basket retained its bottom, and balls had to be retrieved manually after each "basket" or point scored; this proved inefficient, however, so the bottom of the basket was removed, allowing the balls to be poked out with a long dowel each time.</P>
